YEARBOOK

Yearbook Advisor, Mrs. Dumais

"I'm so confused."

So this is how you put the yearbook together!

"How fitting!"

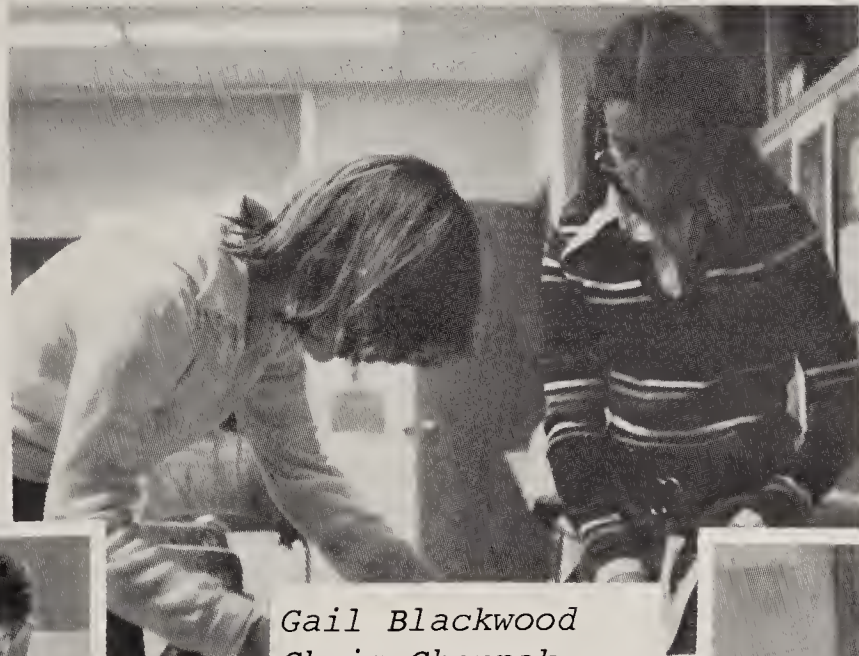

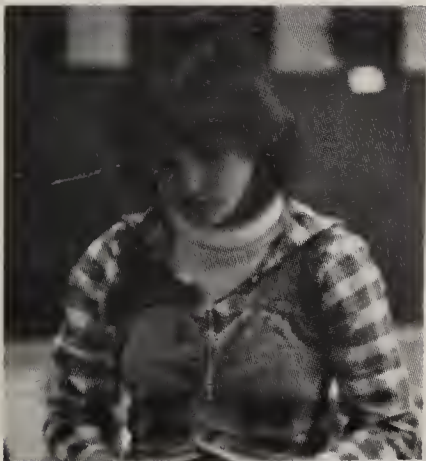

We, the Yearbook Staff, leave Chris Cherpak a large plastic bottle of glue to glue down everything on her desk.

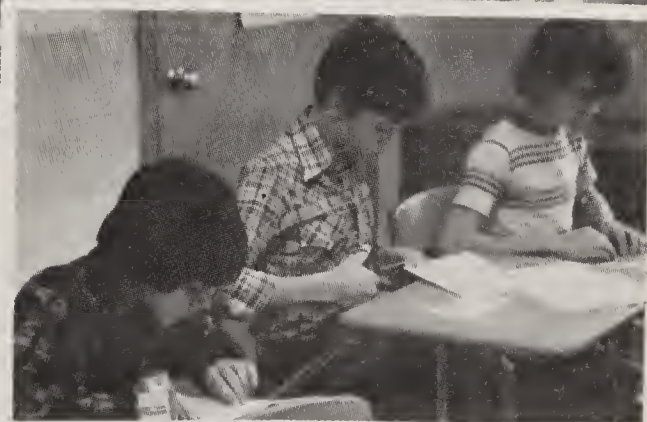

"Oops another mistake."

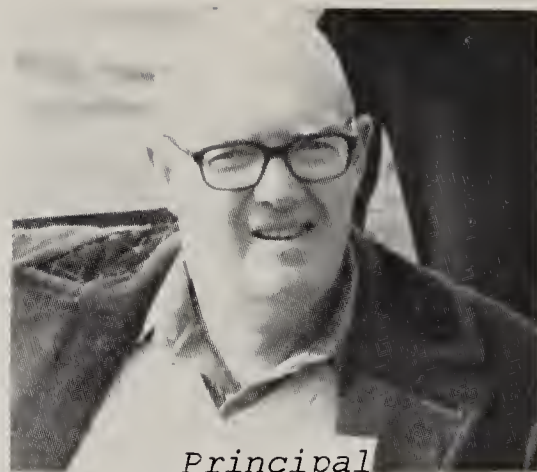

We, Kris Riccardo, Janice Hitchcock, and Dawn Wascholl, leave Mrs Dumais a gaint broom to sweep up all the pictures that were left on the floor.

The Three Mouseketeers

"The boys are back in town."

Prophecy

It is the year 2,000 and the class of '79 from J.F.K. is meeting to find a new place to live because there are rumors that beings from other planets are about to invade Earth. The big question to be decided is where to set up a new home. After much discussion, it has been agreed upon that they will go underwater where they feel it would be more exciting to live.

Gail Blackwood and Laureen Giangrasso are telephoning the local newspaper which is headed by Kathy Warburton, Lucas Munas and Tracey Cote, to place ads for people willing to work for "Project Underwater City."

Within 48 hours Pam Nixon, Sue Urevith, Donna Cadmus, Keith Foxe and Claude Therrien had called to inquire about the listing since they had good references and a lot of extra time. They and a few others, Stephen Couture, Lee Deskus, Kevin Fetridge, Michael Dellaquila, were immediately hired. The head secretary, Jamie Thomas, was looking for more employees. Soon she came up with Ralph Freeman, Dave Lombardi, Pat Benvenuto, Rick Mara, Jim Kaiser, and Marc Libin of the Mahoney Construction Company to do the architectural work for this fascinating dwelling.

Meanwhile, a contract had already been drawn up by Lynne Smith, Andy Dubreuil, Mark Owens, Janet Schober, Mark Stabinsky and John Crosson legal aides for the company. All the papers needed to be run off and signed. Luckily, Pam Debonis, Rick Fetko, Kristine Dukes, Richard Maier and Steve Proteau agreed to make a sufficient number of copies. There were night courses being taught at Fermi and Enfield High to acquaint people with this new material. Kevin McKiernan, Kris Grout, Barbara Marion, Melissa Herlihy, and Jimmy Gagnon attended the course. Their instructors were Paul Rollins, Patty Smith, John Sheridan; all highly educated people. Their friends, Kim Williams, Mary Cummings, Mike Clougherty, Kris Riccardo, Kevin Foxe, John Dion and Rhonda Dupuis questioned the material but then found it acceptable.

Chris Pape, the construction company president's brother-in-law, offered the idea of publicizing this underwater project. Soon they had David Shane, John Tamayo, Roy Hoyt, Tom Presta and Carol Ruel, all of whom were fine art students, designing posters for Paul Buttafuoco, Kurt Glende, Richard Anderson, David Arruda and Jean Walsh to post around town.

Soon money started rolling in from many wealthy people, Claudia Goguts, Cindy Clavette, Becky Dresser, Paul Davis, Karen Coughlin, Karen Dondero and Linda Contois. A few movie stars, Tim Gendreau, Kevin Guimond, Steve Ouellette, and Chris Gilberto donated money. A husband and wife team, Brendan Fitzsimmons and Karen Wagner, acted in some plays to help raise money for the project.

The construction workers began putting up the framework of this remarkable building. Unfortunately, progress was halted for a few hours because James Ayotte, Laura Sferrazza, Kevin Ford, Michelle Ryan, and Kathryn Krajewski forgot to order wetsuits from Railroad Savage where Greg Rabb, Jerry Pare, Rhonda Remington, Mark Owens, Penny Worthington, and Janice Hitchcock worked as cashiers. As soon as they purchased the suits, work got underway.

Pat Keegan was off wandering with Debbie London, Kathy Haberern, Tammy Stein, and Barry Flannery during lunchbreak. Meanwhile Ginger Heiss was attacked by an octopus. Fortunately for her A.J. Coulter, Gordon Lovell, Eric Pagel, Daryll Sanders, Michael Mgrdichian and Chuck Guhne, all former wrestlers, were there to help out.

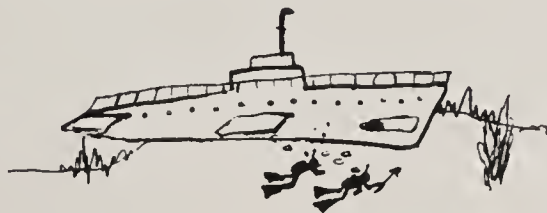

The city was almost complete - Billy Callahan, Rick Beebe, and Mike Turcotte, strong guys, had come down with huge pipes to push the water out. Theresa Leitao, Wayne Larsen, Billy Orr, Brian Markavich, Chris Cherpak and Jeff Yeager, known as very intelligent scientists, designed a unique way of providing air.

It was now time for the initiation of the President, Dawn Wascholl, and vice-president Carmen Barile. They both gave speeches written by their advisors, Dave Bourque, Linda Curcio and Natalie Reyor. All of the residents and construction workers, Dawn Fritze, Dan Anderson, Dave Clark, Kim Farley, Sheryl Beckett, and Arlen Carlson were there. Even prominent store owners, Keith Vujs, Debbie O'Neil and Kathy Wallace attended.

Now the 1979 J.F.K. students were ready to go down to their underwater city. Mike Clougherty, Dan Ferguson, Todd Sidway, and Debbie Olden were submarine captains. Megan Flynn, Debbie Smith and Laura Heidweiller were loading people on board the submarines. Chris Telesky, Dawn Snyder, and Julie Springer were baggage carriers: Bob Williams, Randy Stanio, Debbie Abreu and Mark Magora were in charge of loading the animals on board. Andy Kearney, Roger Sutherland, Alison Talevi, John Sutrick, Pat Gallo, and Kim Graham finally showed up. Becky Van Horn, Lisa Thibodeau, Jeff Belorit, Wally Gill and Marty Blauvelt were late as usual.

Our stewardesses, Sandy Stanio, Ann Parakilas, Darlene Simmons, Jenny Gobb, and Hope Taylor were doing a fantastic job. Ira Becker, Dana Babine, Bob Pelligrinelli, Kris Kiehnle, and Todd Rawson were doing crossword puzzles to pass the time. Mike Uccello and Phil Pion were having a Shirley Temple to calm their nerves which were made by bartenders Bob Gattona, Scott Sombric, Bill Buckley and John Kaplan.

Sitting around the poker table were Joe Steele, Lori Levi, Theresa Johnson, Steve Percoski and Mitch Kraucunas, Robert Turgeon and Brenda Garno were loaded with money.

Because of close quarters, everyone was getting on everyone else's nerves. At the poker table were Boy Guyette, Joe Duquette. Michelle Shasha and Joni Zarcaro were getting into a fight.

Fortunately, we then arrived at our underground city. Rosanne Hallett heard there was an octopus on the landing pad. Joe Smith, Richard Rasmussen, Bill Meyer and Sue Bertranč, a few of the departing organizers, order Kim Glass, Chris Scarfo, Jim Dion, and Eric Martin to destroy the octopus.

After everything was squared away, everyone attended a welcoming party. Cathy Russell, Patty Staveski, and Linda Morgan had planned the party. Sue Ann Lajoie, Laurie Nadeau, Tracey Currey and Lori Young hired an excellent Band called "Purple Haze" made up of Val Kropiwnicki, Bruce Dumais, Tony Ziter, Paul Jean and Mark Weiss.

They had Patsy DeLage, Dawn Weeks, Mike Imperatrice, Don Chapman, and Bonnie Strickland buy food for the party.

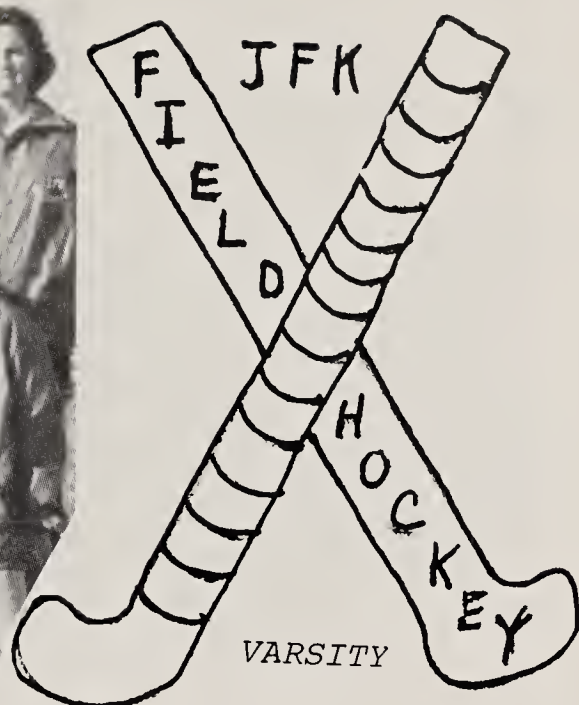

Sandy Wylot and Leslie Canino made up a dance that everyone seemed to like. John Lupi played his harmonica while there was a dance contest going on at the other end of the room. Roger Charette, Brian Jennie, Kris Grout, Tamara White and Bob O Connor entered this contest in which Donna Gill was the judge.

After the party was over, Cynthia Clavette, Kori Olechnicki, Jeff Belorit, Danielle LaPointe and Denise Smith cleaned up. What a mess.

Most people thought everything was going well, but it turned out that there was trouble. The octopi were coming in on us. We had to leave. Ed Zimmer, Rick Leete, Mike Bennett, head coast guards, demanded that everyone move back to land so the packing began.

Good news was soon heard from Theresa Cassell, Robin Cormier, John Holmes and Jody Krick. The beings from outer space had found Earth unsuitable and had left. Everything was back to normal. What a relief!

ONCE UNDEFEATED again

Gee, this is nice!.

We can't go on meeting like this."

"Gitty up!"

Since all we will be taking with us are memories, we, the ninth grade class of 1979, leave behind the following:

I, Pam Nixon, leave Mr. Breither a big smile for all the times I gave him a blank look.

I, Andrea Siana, leave Miss Shonak the confusion of not knowing what went on in the back of the class.

We, Mr. Milroy's second period biology class, leave him a violin so that he can continue to play his sad songs to his next classes.

I, Leslie Canino, leave to Sue Linehan the leadership of the "Itty Bitty Committee" in hopes she will keep up the tradition.

We, Fran Carolla and Lori Nadeau, leave Miss Dowsett the best memories of our favorite and cool English teacher. We had a great year.

We, Kevin Foxe and Kevin Guimond, leave the gym aide shirts which we never got from Miss Wynglarz to some lucky aides next year.

We, the 9th grade section of the drama club, leave Mr. Bayerowski some talent scouts to help him find actors as great as we've been.

We, Scott Downs and Tim O'Brien, leave Mr. Sweet a tie and directions on how to tie one.

We, Chris Gilberto and Alison Talevi, leave Miss Wynglarz a new film projector to replace the one which we blew up.

I, Patty Staveski, leave Brenda Hoyt one more year of this school and hope to see her next year.

I, Laureen Giangrasso, leave to Mr. Andy a dozen fish in hopes that at least six will live without him killing them.

I, Val Kropiwnicki, after getting all I can from it, leave the book, I Love Myself, to Marty Green.

We, Carl Albert and Ed Barr, leave Mr. Haley a box of errorless chalk.

We, Kevin Foxe, Tim Gendreau, Kevin Guimond, Pat Keegan and Val Kropiwnicki, leave Mr. Sampson our thanks for making it possible to make it through Kennedy.

We, Mrs. Dumais' second period class, leave her a name for the little white rabbit that we never quite got around to naming.

We, Mr. LaBreck's last year's honors class, leave him a dot to dot book in hopes he will learn how to draw.

We, Maika Vaudreuil, Leslie and Lori Nadeau, leave Mr. Cowles a sponge and some desk cleaner to wipe away the conversations of "Hewey, Dewey and Lewey."

I, Theresa Johnson, leave Mr. Madore a one way ticket to France.

I, Kathy Warburton, leave Mr. Askin some eighth grader who will lose more homework papers than I did.

We, Claudia Goguts and Chris Gilberto, leave Mr. Milroy a T-shirt that says "Boogie on Down".

We, Donna Schaperjahn and Paula Kondraci, leave Mr. Elliott our two moldy gym suits.

We, Mr. Haley's Seventh period algebra class, leave him a dictionary for an English translation of all his Quite Sophisticated Words.

We, Lisa Thibodeau and Anne Werther, leave Ms. Stillo a new pair of sandals to go with her bright pink knee socks.

We, Sandy Wylot and Kathy Wallace, leave Mr. Breither all the eighth graders so he can make them into sophisticated and mature ninth graders.

We, Missy Thompson and Laura Nolan, leave Mr. Naz a whole new matching wardrobe which includes pink ties.

We, Mrs. D'Amato's seventh period class, leave her her favorite expression, "Que' Bueno".

We, Miss Harkins' sixth period students, have known her for three years but still don't know what to leave her.

I, Lisa Thibodeau, leave J.F.K. as soon as I can.

We, Laurie Fuller, and Laura Nolan leave Mr. Citron a box of notes so he doesn't have to take anyone else's.

We, the ninth graders, leave to the J.F.K. administration the eighth graders who will never be as disruptive, distructive and indifferent as we are.

I, Tim O'Brien, leave Miss Rodriques nothing.

I, Wendy Sue Keenan, leave the teachers of J.F.K. a book of replies for all of us students who have excuses for coming to class late.

We, Linda Contois and Jean Walsh, leave Mr. Albano a box of tic-tacs so he can get a bang out of life.

I, Karen Gourinski, leave Mr. Charland with the memories of "The Way I was".

I, Tammy Sorenson, leave Mr. Madore a book on how to get attendance taken, collected and brought to the office on time.

We, Kelly Wasko and Jean Walsh, leave Mr. Naz all the progress reports we never had signed.

We, Miss Shonak's sixth period class, leave her all the zeroes we received for our homework assignments.

I, Elaine Coombs, leave Mr. Kiner ten pairs of red socks to add to his collection.

I, Paula Kondracki, leave Mr. Fletcher an extra minute to give to a student like myself so we can get to class on time.

We, Mr. Sweet's sixth period class, leave him the portable T.V. that he never got.

I, Chris Gilberto, leave Mr. Askin the name Don Juan.

I, Linda Contois, leave Joe Gagne a supply of girls to last him through his years at J.F.K.

We, Mr. Andy's sixth period first semester Earth Science class, leave him 1 pound of calories that he can watch.

We, Linda Contois and Linda Curcio, "The Fearsome Twosome", leave Mr. "B" a can of wax and a cloth so he can wash his own desk.

We, Frank Mottolese and John Philbin, leave Mr. Cowles a cheerleading uniform to match his saddle shoes.

We, Laura Faucette and Chris Cherpak, leave our blue house locker to some artistic eighth grader who will decorate it as faithfully as we did.

We, Mr. Milroy's sixth period Earth Science class, leave him a few hairs that didn't turn gray during our stay in 16B.

I, Lisa Messmer, leave Mrs. Dyer all the weekly reports that I never passed in.

I, Michelle Ryan, leave next year's band president the joy of conducting all the "comedians" in the A band.

We, Rhonda Remington and Tammy Stein, leave Mr. Keller the gym sneakers and gym suits that we never used.

We, Mary Baldyga and Janet Schober, leave Mr. Demers a hearing aid for all the questions that he just didn't seem to hear.

We, Miss Dowsett's first period class, leave her a book entitled How To Yell at Ninth Graders without Laughing.

We, Holly Gaudette and Chris Gilberto, leave Mrs. Gaj a picture of us with our names underneath so she can call us by our correct names.

We, the bored ninth graders, leave Mr. Robinson a new microphone and a new, exciting morning exercise.

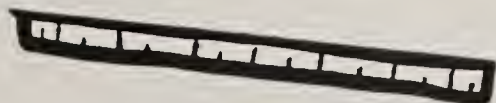

We, the ninth graders who stand on the corner in the morning, ask that the Housemasters take good care of the binoculars they received last year so they can see next year's group.

We, Debbie DiBiase, Karen Gourinski and Theresa Cassell, leave Mr. Clarkin a new yarkdstick to chase away all the instigators who interrupt his classes.

We, the ninth graders, leave Mr. Ohlin an empty room so he could set up a store to compete with Mr. Sunter.

Mrs. McCarthy's Spanish students leave her roller skates so she can push her cart faster.

We, Mrs. Wojciehowski's former team students, leave her with the name Brown so her students can spell it correctly.

A special thanks is left to the following for their help:

Mr. Connors, pictures; Miss Davis, artistic ideas; Mrs. Dynia, sales; Mrs. Ivanisin typing; Mr. Ohlin, his support; Mr. Pastore, printing and lettering; Mr. Sampson, sales, and to all the other teachers for putting up with the interruptions for pictures taking. Also, thanks to Mrs. Wojciehowski and her students for counting the superlative votes.

We, Mrs. Dumais's 78-79 yearbook committee, leave her next year's class in hopes they will be more organized.

Mrs. Dumais wills to Mrs. Dynia and Mr. Sampson a hundred pen refills so that they can continue to help write out receipts for the year-book.
